Winter Highlights

What a busy month December was across the state of South Dakota. I loved seeing all the projects for our veterans and communities. I was able to use my baking skills to raise money for our local, state and national charities.

My boyfriend Lance and I delivered gifts to veterans at the Palisade Healthcare Center in Garretson. One veteran I was especially excited to see. Last year she was beyond excited to get her favorite word searches. This year, she was again speechless that wonderful people that she did not even know donated more gifts including her puzzle books. She told us many stories about her husband and her years of service for our country. I told her this was a small way that we could thank them.

The second veteran we delivered to loves his cologne.

The final veteran we delivered to is the dad to two of my oldest friends. We caught up about his family and shared many laughs while he opened his gifts.
